

Whānau Say:

We still keep a close eye on her, because she's really confident but forgets about things like water and road safety.

We didn't think we needed to be as careful with her now that she is older, but because she is more active, accidents still happen. We watch the driveway, drains, containers and ponds because they're interesting, but also dangerous.

She's counting and chanting the alphabet. It's rote learning at this stage, it all helps her memory.

We make sure to whakanui people and not bad mouth them in front of her – we mind what she sees on TV too.

*'Watch what they hear,
watch what they see'.
Dame Whina Cooper*